SCENE: ALCANTARA IN THE HOUSE OF DR. PARACELSUS.

ARGUMENT.

CARLOS, the son of Señor BALTHAZAR, has fallen in love with Senoretta ISABELLA, daughter of DOCTOR PARACELSUS. In the meanwhile, ISABELLA has been betrothed to a young man, with whose name she has not been made acquainted. Surprised by her mother in listening to a serenade given by CARLOS, she confesses her love for him, and refuses to marry the unknown intended. CARLOS contrives to have himself conveyed into the house in a basket, under cover of a present to INEZ, the confidante of ISABELLA. CARLOS takes advantage of the absence of everybody to get out of the basket and conceal himself. The DOCTOR and INEZ, in trying to hide the basket from the quarrelsome LUCREZIA, drop it into the river, and afterwards learn that there was a man in it. Attracted by the despairing screams of INEZ, the night watch appear, led by the Alguazil, POMPOSO, who informs them that they are under the surveillance of his men as suspicious persons. After the departure of the night watch, the DOCTOR and INEZ are left brooding in fear and dismay over their crime, when CARLOS enters, to the great terror of the DOCTOR and INEZ, who immediately suspect him to be a police spy. He discovers himself to them as the son of Señor BALTHAZAR, being at the same time unaware that his lady love and his intended are one and the same. Transported with joy, the DOCTOR asks him to take a glass of wine with him, which wine, brought by INEZ, proving to be one of the DOCTOR's poisonous decoctions, plunges CARLOS at once into a deathlike swoon. The DOCTOR, believing him dead, and afraid of being detected in this his second imaginary murder, conceals CARLOS in a sofa, in which act he is disagreeably surprised by the sudden arrival of SENOR BALTHAZAR, who comes to conclude the arrangements for the marriage of his son and ISABELLA. His presence being objectionable to them, they put every obstacle in his way, so that at length he is forced to pass the night on the sofa, beneath which his son's body is concealed. When he is asleep, the DOCTOR and INEZ, fearful of discovery, enter to remove the body from under BALTHAZAR, who awakes and starts up in fear. CARLOS, by this time recovering from the effect of the opiate, contrives to get out of the sofa, and his father meeting him in the dark, utters a cry of alarm which terrifies the DOCTOR and INEZ, and also attracts the neighbors. Mutual explanations take place, and ISABELLA and CARLOS prove to have been loving at cross-purposes, as they were, from the first, intended for each other by their respective parents.

OVERTURE.

JULIUS EICHBERG.

Andantino.

The musical score is written for piano in common time (C). It consists of five systems of two staves each (treble and bass clef). The first system begins with a piano (p) dynamic. LUCREZIA. Was ever woman so abused in her own house? Holy Saint Iago, protect me from such another onslaught! But you shan't stay another day in my house.

INEZ (lighting candle on table). It's too bad if a virtuous girl is to be abused without the privilege of defending herself—all about a paltry serenade too.

ISABELLA. Inez, pray be quiet. Mamma, control yourself.

LUC. It appears that is all I am allowed to control in this house! (Goes up to window.)

INEZ. There isn't another maid in all Spain would put up with it; and I'm determined I won't any longer, if I have to live on onions and dry bread for the rest of my existence—carnival days included.

LUC. (looking out of window). What do I see? There is a boat almost under our very window. Oh! And that is the cause of all this trouble, is it? Dear me—a serenade must be a very new thing in Spain, to set two silly girls running a race to see which shall be first on the balcony to hear it.

INEZ (aside). I wonder if she calls herself a girl too!

ISA. You know, mamma, that you were as eager as either of us to listen to it.

LUC. I listen! Houghty toighty! It's my belief that Miss Inez has a lover in the city, and that she allows him to come here at this hour, in order to bring our house into discredit—nay,—to bring me into discredit.

INEZ. No Senora! I know my place better. If I am not Donna Lucrezia, wife of Doctor Paracelsus, I am not a brazen huzzy either. This house, indeed, where there is a young girl engaged to be married.

ISA. (sighing). Heigho!

LUC. Why how you sigh at the thought of your wedding!

ISA. Indeed I do!

LUC. Why this is heresy! People have been burned for less. Here you have a husband provided for you without the slightest trouble on your part, and yet you are dissatisfied. While it is the business of every girl's life to allure a husband, you object to one when he is already found to your hand.

INEZ. Perhaps, madam, if I may be allowed to suggest it, she would prefer the usual trouble, and be better satisfied by choosing for herself.

LUC. Be silent, saucebox! I believe you have corrupted her. (To ISA.) Why do you object to your intended? He is one of the richest young men in Madrid, and a thorough gentleman.

ISA. A pretty sort of gentlemen he must be to have his wife selected for him!

LUC. That is an especial proof of his trust in you.

ISA. Nonsense! It is an especial proof that he is a fool. Obedience in such a case is no merit.

INEZ. So I say. If he had only been disobedient and refused her, she would by this time have been dying to have him.

LUC. Silence, minion! Isabella, a wealthy lover is not to be despised!

ISA. Heigho!

INEZ. Heigho!

LUC. (impatiently). Always sighing! Go to bed. I'll see when the doctor returns, if he can't work some change in you.

ISA. Change! I won't change! I will be unhappy!

INEZ. Yes, miss, do. Believe me, there is no such happiness for a young girl as misery and despair.

LUC. I see through it all; but let me tell you that you either marry him or go into a convent. What do you mean by objecting to a man whom you have never seen—a man whose name even you don't know? Was there ever such caprice! You have a love for some one else. That is the secret.

ISA. Oh, yes! Such a handsome young man. Of such good family

LUC. How do you know that?

ISA. Because he is so pretty—so sweet—so amiable!

LUC. A pretty code of morals, indeed! You have had much time to learn him, I dare say.

ISA. It was certainly against my intentions, and while I was at the convent. Oh, so sweet, so pretty!

HE STILL WAS THERE.

The first system of the musical score consists of a vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line is written on a single staff with a treble clef and a key signature of one sharp (F#). The lyrics are: "faith - ful shadow fall That filled the air with sighs for - lorn: The night dews". The piano accompaniment is written on two staves (treble and bass clefs) with a key signature of one sharp. It features a flowing melody in the right hand and a more rhythmic accompaniment in the left hand.

The second system of the musical score continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line lyrics are: "fell o'er him in vain, He feared nor sun - ny sky, nor rain; I seemed to". The piano accompaniment continues with similar melodic and rhythmic patterns as the first system.

The third system of the musical score concludes the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line lyrics are: "be... .. his on - ly care! Turn where I might, he still was there! He still was there!". The piano accompaniment provides a final accompaniment for the vocal line.

The vocal line begins with a whole rest, followed by a half note G4, and then a quarter note G4. The piano accompaniment features a flowing eighth-note pattern in the right hand and a more rhythmic bass line in the left hand.

LUCREZIA (mimicking). He still was there! Oh, yes! This comes of your reading Gil Blas and Don Quixote, instead of attending to your studies or telling your beads. Holy Saint Martin! what are we coming to? We shall have the Moors again, since daughters are grown so undutiful.

INEZ. If they come in the form of lovers we shan't want the Cid to shiver a lance in our cause.

ISABELLA (lackadaisically). Alas! where are those happy times, when after the Angelus each day, I found a perfumed billet in the keyhole of the convent gate?

INEZ (sighing). Ah!

LUC. What do I hear? (Indignantly.)

ISA. A little billet, which breathed the burning and soul-consuming sentiments of passionate and undying love!

INEZ (sighing). Ah!

LUC. I'm petrified!— In a convent too! I almost blush!

ISA. What joy to read them! So tender, so respectful, so diffident, so—so—everything charming! His respect and consideration for me knew no bounds.

LUC. And how did he show it, profligate?

ISA. In his last letter he proposed elopement.

LUC. Very respectful, indeed!

ISA. Yes, and I ought to have accepted it.

INEZ. Now, I call that the height of sincerity.

LUC. What do I hear? I am blushing now—I feel it.

ISA. That is love far better than that of a young man I don't know nobody else knows, and whom I don't want to know, and shan't die if I never do know; and who, moreover, is perhaps very ugly. I vow I won't have him if he be ugly.

LUC. What, miss! Do you dare put conditions to your consent?

ISA. Yes; this one, at least.

LUC. It is downright rebellion.

INEZ. No! It's only a declaration of rights!

- LUC. Ah! At last you are returned. Come here, let me tell you what I have just heard.
- ISA. My dear sir, I will explain. There has been a serenade here—
- LUC. Never mind the serenade. Repeat what you have said to me. You shall hear, Doctor.
- DOCT. Yes, I hear. (Becoming deeply absorbed in his bottle.) Two ounces of white laudanum, and an ounce of distilled lettuce. Yes!
- LUC. (to ISABELLA.) Well, my lady! Are you ready? Have you done with this indecision?
- ISA. Yes, I am decided! I say whatever I am forced to do, my feelings will remain the same. I will be faithful to this hateful intended as—as—long as I can.
- INEZ. And a very short time at that!
- LUC. There! Did you hear that, Doctor?
- DOCT. (absently.) Yes! That was not very bad. As long as she can. He can't expect more than that. (Becomes absorbed again in his bottle.) One scruple of inspissated juice of cabbage, and three grains of clarified tallow fat.
- LUC. But do you know what all this trouble is about?
- DOCT. About a young man she is to marry.
- LUC. Oh, no! Not at all.
- INEZ. Nothing like it.
- LUC. Silence, mix! It is of a young man she has seen at Seville, and whom she loves.
- DOCT. Ha! (Angrily.) Then she will—(becomes absorbed.) Aconite, arsenic, nux vomica, prussic acid! I am afraid I have put a little too much sleep into it for a comfortable sleeping draught. Oh, if I should have made it a poison instead! (Puts bottle on table.)
- LUC. (angrily.) What! Is this all you have to say? A pretty fellow you are to have command of a house. What would become of you if I were dead and gone?
- DOCT. (absently.) I don't know, my dear. You never tried the experiment.
- LUC. Bah! Those filthy drugs are all you are fit for.
- DOCT. We live by them, my dear.
- LUC. Yes, and others die by them. I wish I was rid of them!
- DOCT. (innocently.) Wouldn't you like to try my sleeping draught, my dear?
- LUC. Bah! You're a brute. (To ISA.) As for you, miss, keep your feelings to yourself. Your romance and obstinacy won't do with me in future. I will knock them out of you without any assistance. And you, my mix! (To INEZ.)
- INEZ. Ah! now it's my turn.
- LUC. I only want exemplary people about me; so I give you fair warning. At the first sign of an intrigue on your part, you go!
- INEZ. Intrigue! Holy Saint Martin, and the ghosts of the Morescoes in the Alhambra! There is not a more discreet girl in all Spain than I am!
- LUC. I don't want discretion.
- DOCT. No she doesn't. (Looking angrily at INEZ.)
- LUC. I want honesty.
- DOCT. (innocently.) Very much!
- LUC. (going.) Now, mind! (To DOCTOR.) Ugh! You senseless, drug-compounding, villainously stupid, mentally imbecile quack!
- (Exit LUCREZIA, angrily.)
- DOCT. (vacantly.) Quack!
- INEZ. (astonished.) Quack!
- ISA. (sobbing.) Quack!
- OMNES. Quack!
- DOCT. She is not in good temper to-night. (Goes to cabinet.)
- INEZ. Oh, miss! If that should be your lover, who has discovered where you live!
- ISA. Do you think he has, Inez?
- INEZ. Indeed I do.
- DOCT. (standing on chair and arranging objects in cabinet.) Inez, will you hand me the flacon on yonder table?
- INEZ. (paying no attention.) Is he really so fine and gallant a young senior as you say?
- ISA. Oh, yes, Inez! Words cannot describe his many perfections! Oh, if I am forced into this marriage it will kill me!
- INEZ. Then don't be forced into it. Kill yourself before hand!
- DOCT. (as before.) Inez, will you hand me that flacon?
- INEZ. I wouldn't marry a man I didn't love for all the parents in the world. As for taxing me with intrigue, I vow, I wouldn't look in the face of a young man,—especially if there wasn't one near me. (Knock heard at door.)
- DOCT. (still in chair.) I believe there is some one knocking at the door, Inez.
- INEZ. We all have our troubles, miss.
- ISA. I hope you and Carlino agree.
- INEZ. Oh, yes, miss. We agree very well, but we are not good friends. There is a miff between Carlino and myself, which forbids an approach on either side. (Knock heard again.)
- DOCT. (aside.) I believe she hasn't opened the door yet. I had better do it myself. (Exit DOCTOR.)
- ISA. What! Have you and Carlino quarrelled?
- INEZ. Yes, miss! He came into money, and from a water-carrier has aspired to be a candy merchant with two mules. The monster is going to eat up his inheritance without me! Oh, miss, the men are all alike!

INEZ. Doctor!

DOCT. There is something for you, my child.

INEZ. For me?

PEREZ. Yes, for you. (Winks at INEZ, and stands preternaturally solemn.)

DOCT. Yes, these men have brought it.

PEREZ. Ay!

SANCHO. Yes. (They grimace at INEZ without moving.)

ISA. Gracious! What do they mean!

PEREZ (proking his tongue mysteriously in his cheek). Inez!

SANCHO (chuckling, and winking his eye). Inez! Yes.

INEZ. Well?

PEREZ. For you, Inez. This. All right. Hush!

INEZ. What is it?

SANCHO. Nothing. A bijou. The second house on the right hand side.

PEREZ. Yes; overlooking the river.

INEZ. From whom does it come?

PEREZ. From him. For you. (Winking his eye.)

SANCHO. Confections. It is a little bouquet of candies.

INEZ. Candies? Oh, it is from Carlino.

ISA. (sighing). Heigho! You see he has not forgotten you!

DOCT. Who is this Carlino, Inez?

INEZ. Why—Carlino.—It—comes from Carlino.

DOCT. Oh, yes. I don't know who Carlino is, but I'm glad it s from him. (To Porters.) Is there anything more?

PEREZ. This billet. (Shows letter.)

DOCT. (taking letter). A billet.

'Tis an ag-o-ny de-licious, 'Tis a joy and woe ca-pricious.

The first system of the musical score consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with the lyrics "pain. He loves, he loves, he loves!" followed by "Pray tell me, sir, the story of your". The piano accompaniment features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes.

The second system of the musical score consists of three staves. The top two staves are vocal lines. The bottom staff is a grand staff for piano accompaniment. The lyrics are written below the vocal staves. The piano part features a dynamic marking of ff (fortissimo) in the second measure. The music continues in the same key and time signature.

The third system of the musical score consists of a grand staff for piano accompaniment. It features intricate piano textures with many sixteenth and thirty-second notes. The system concludes with a double bar line and a repeat sign.

- LUC. What a fine young cavalier! Sir, do you know that you have done very wrong to enter here?
- CAR. Yes, Senora. I know it, but I am a tender and sweet young flower of nature, whose heart is a bed of summer roses, wherein the honey yet remains ungathered.
- LUC. Oh, Senor, how beautiful and soft!
- CAR. The summer clouds flit not across the bosom of the sky with greater lightness, than love o'er my heart. Oh, Senora, I adore, I love, I venerate, I worship a person in this house! You will, I am sure, excuse my delicacy, when I forbear to mention her name. You may easily guess who it is, when I tell you she is beautiful.
- LUC. (crossing). Oh, he must mean me.
- CAR. (affectedly). The honeysuckle on its pendulous stem, the little humming-bird sipping sweets from the tender flowers under the golden sky of an Italian autumn, are not more chaste and tender than my love.
- LUC. Oh, Senor, I must not listen to this—at least, not just now. You know not the danger you run.
- CAR. Danger? Who would harm the tender butterfly that spreads his tinted wings to the balmy air of autumn? No, Senora.
- LUC. I beseech you, not now. Some other time—some other place. Some one approaches. Oh, sir, retire!
- CAR. What! Into that basket again? Oh, Senora.—Senorita—Senorissima! Ask not that. All the saints in the calendar, and the aching bones in my body, cry out against it. Those porters were very kind fellows, but they bumped me unmercifully. I love, Senora, send me not away in despair. Oh, first cut my throat with a pearl-handled penknife, and send my bleeding corpse away, a sacrifice to my overpowering and unhappy love.
- LUC. Oh, Senor! Should my husband return— Consider—get in CAR. (with one foot in basket). Why do you give me so cruel an alternative? I who love so purely, so warmly, so divinely! (Getting out of the basket). Senora, have you ever read the story of Prince Camaralzaman in the Arabian Nights?
- LUC. If you delay longer I'll scream!
- CAR. Oh, don't scream! The delicate organization of my cloud-soaring soul will not allow me to survive it. (Gets in basket.)
- LUC. (shutting lid on him). Oh, the imprudent young man!
- CAR. (rising in basket). But—
- LUC. (shutting lid on him). Senor!
- CAR. (rising again). Senora, be divinely kind enough to tell the porters to carry me right side up.
- LUC. Yes, Senor.
- CAR. And pray tell them not to shake the basket too much. The points of the willow are sharp, and puncture me in a very uncomfortable manner.
- LUC. (shutting lid violently). Yes, Senor. Oh, what a flutter I am in! I must seek the porters, and get him out of the house as soon as possible (Exit LUCREZIA.)
- CAR. (getting out of basket). What! leave the house without having seen her, without having breathed out my burning soul to her? Never! What shall I do? That is a very nice lady, but I tremble to think that she is neither young nor handsome. How shall I remain in the house? Ah, I have it! (Takes up book.) What is this? Plutarch in quarto (throws it in basket). Seneca in folio (throws in another book). Plato's Philosophy (throws book in). Galen (throws book in). Hippocrates (throws book in). Lopez de Vega, in twenty volumes (throws them in). In they go. (Lifts basket.) It's hardly heavy enough. (Takes up books.) Tragedies! Ah! they're heavy enough. (Throws in a number of books.) That will do. (Closes lid.) Now they may take that away. I'll remain. Where shall I go? (Going.) Where does this lead to? I will explore. (Exit CARLOS.) [Enter INEZ.]
- INEZ. The Senora is not here (Advances cautiously and looks about.) Very good. Now I'll take a peep at my present. Oh, Carlino! What a dear little fellow you are! (Approaches basket.)
- DOCT. (enters with knife.) Inez!
- INEZ. Santa Maria! Who is it?
- DOCT. Only me, my child. What are you about to do?
- INEZ. Examine my present. I was afraid the Senora would be angry, and so I am going to look at it on the sly.
- DOCT. Well, I am quite curious to know what you have there.
- INEZ. Perhaps biscuits. Oh, mercy! Footsteps again.
- DOCT. It is Lucrezia. It will never do for her to see this, if you wish to keep your place, my child. Take it to your own room.
- INEZ. (trying to lift basket) I can't. Lend me a hand.
- DOCT. Where shall we take it? Inez, eat up your biscuits at once, and then we can get the basket away easily enough.
- INEZ. No! Let us take it out on the balcony, until the Senora is out of the way.
- DOCT. Good! This is as exciting as an intrigue. (Lifts one end of basket.) Your biscuits are heavy, Inez.
- INEZ. (lifting the other end). Yes. (Drops basket on DOCTOR'S toes.)
- DOCT. Ah, Inez!—Once more. All right. (They take the basket to the balcony and rest it there.) That will do. Stay! Let me steady it. (The DOCTOR, in trying to steady it, lets it fall into the water.) Oh, it's gone, Inez! I'm very sorry!
- INEZ. Oh, my poor biscuits! How could you be so careless? I declare it has sunk! (Enter LUCREZIA.)
- LUC. I can't find the porters anywhere. (Sees DOCT.) Ah, my husband!
- INEZ. (sobbing). My poor biscuit!
- LUC. My dear, I thought you were out walking.
- DOCT. No; I shall not go just yet.
- LUC. (aside). Where can the basket be? He has gone, then. Since he is safe, I will make a true woman's merit of telling her husband all when he can't revenge himself. (Aloud.) Husband!
- DOCT. Well, wife.
- LUC. Have you seen anything here?
- DOCT. No. (Aside.) She has seen the basket and misses it!
- LUC. Nothing at all?
- DOCT. Oh! Yes! No! Certainly not! (Confused.)
- LUC. A basket, for instance.
- INEZ. (aside). Now for another storm.
- DOCT. Yes, my dear. I remember a basket. Quite a trifle.
- LUC. Did you see what was in it?
- DOCT. No. (Aside to INEZ.) You had better tell her all, Inez.
- INEZ. It was a little present of candies for me.
- LUC. Husband, there was a man in it?
- DOCT. (staggering back overwhelmed). What!
- INEZ. (fainting against DOCTOR). A man!
- LUC. Yes, a man, who took this means of entering the house, and of making audacious proposals of love to me; but I scorned his offers, and left the room in search of you, that you might avenge the insult. Is he gone?
- DOCT. (stupidified). I should say he was!
- INEZ. (aside). Perhaps it was Carlino himself!
- DOCT. You must be mistaken, wife.
- LUC. I tell you, I spoke to him, on this spot, not ten minutes ago, and left him here in the basket. He must have been conveyed out again.
- DOCT. Yes, decidedly.
- INEZ. He'll not be conveyed out again in a hurry. (Enter ISABELLA.)
- ISA. Inez! (Aside to INEZ.) That note. Ha, ha! I have read it. It was for me, and from him.
- INEZ. Whom?
- ISA. My cavalier. He is here!
- INEZ. What! In the house?
- ISA. Yes. He was conveyed hither in that basket!
- INEZ. (with horror) What!
- ISA. (to INEZ). It was he who was on the water.
- INEZ. (aside). He's in the water now.
- LUC. Well, do you free me from all suspicion? I don't think he will have the impudence to make another visit.
- DOCT. I don't think he will!
- INEZ. (shuddering). I hope not.
- LUC. Come, Isabella. (Crosses.) How could he have got out?
- ISA. But, ma, I don't want to go.
- LUC. Come along, miss. I have something to say to you. (Exit LUC, pulling ISABELLA.)
- DOCT. (to INEZ) Lock out of the window. I dare not. Perhaps he is swimming in the basket. It was very large.
- INEZ. (looking out). No. There is nothing. He is gone.
- DOCT. (nervously). He? Who? Pooh! Do you believe it was a man?
- INEZ. I know it was. Oh, Doctor, we are murderers!
- DOCT. What do you mean? You threw him out. It was your present.
- INEZ. No, Senor Doctor. You threw him out.
- DOCT. Don't be so positive. I won't inform against you.
- INEZ. Oh, if we should be found out!
- DOCT. My blood runs cold at the very suggestion. (The rattling of castanets heard outside.)
- INEZ. What is that? (Starting with fear.)
- DOCT. It sounds like the rattling of a dead man's bones.
- INEZ. Oh, don't talk so Doctor! It's only some street dancers.
- DOCT. Why do people dance? He can't dance! His dancing days are over!
- INEZ. I am afraid yours are not Doctor.
- DOCT. What do you mean?
- INEZ. Doctor, I'm afraid your last act in life will be something akin to a dance, without any floor to step on.
- DOCT. Wretched girl!
- INEZ. (going to balcony and looking out). Ah! (Screams) Mercy! Murder! I can swear I saw the basket bobbing up and down in the water, as though there were a human being kicking inside to get out, and couldn't! Ah!
- DOCT. (putting his hand over her mouth.) Be quiet, Inez. You make me feel strangely uncomfortable. Don't scream. You'll alarm the night watch!
- INEZ. But, Doctor— I feel I am going to scream again. Ah! (Screams.) Stop my mouth.
- DOCT. (stopping her mouth). I tell you that you'll alarm the night watch, if you haven't done so already. Hark!

ACT II.

ALL' ESPAGNOLA.

Same Scene as before. Scena and Bolero. ISABELLA alone.

Allegro Spiritoso.

The musical score is written for piano and consists of five systems of music. Each system contains a grand staff with a treble and bass clef. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 3/4. The score includes various musical notations such as slurs, accents, and dynamic markings. Performance instructions include cres., marcato., Ped., p, cres., and sf. There are also asterisks (*) and 'x' marks placed below the notes in several measures.

Musical score system 1, measures 1-5. The system features a grand staff with treble and bass clefs. The key signature has three sharps (F#, C#, G#). The music consists of chords and arpeggiated figures. Pedal markings are present: dol. Ped. with an asterisk in measure 1, Ped. with an asterisk in measure 2, and Ped. with an asterisk in measure 5.

Musical score system 2, measures 6-10. The system continues the grand staff notation. Pedal markings include Ped. with an asterisk in measure 6 and Ped. with an asterisk in measure 10. Dynamic markings include pp in measure 8 and cres. in measure 10.

Musical score system 3, measures 11-15. The system continues the grand staff notation. Dynamic markings include f in measure 11, p dol. in measure 12, rit. in measure 13, and f in measure 15.

Musical score system 4, measures 16-20. The system continues the grand staff notation. The music features a dense texture of chords and arpeggios. A dynamic marking of f marcato. is present in measure 16. Pedal markings include Ped. with an asterisk in measures 17 and 19.

Musical score system 5, measures 21-25. The system continues the grand staff notation. Pedal markings include Ped. with an asterisk in measures 21 and 22, and Ped. in measure 25.

First system of musical notation, featuring a treble and bass clef. The music consists of six measures. The right hand plays a series of chords with a descending line, while the left hand plays a rhythmic accompaniment. Pedal markings are present: "Ped." under the third measure and an asterisk "*" under the sixth measure.

Second system of musical notation, featuring a treble and bass clef. The music consists of five measures. The right hand has a melodic line with some grace notes, and the left hand has a rhythmic accompaniment. Dynamics include p, cres., sf, and f.

Third system of musical notation, featuring a treble and bass clef. The music consists of six measures. The right hand plays chords, and the left hand plays a rhythmic accompaniment. Dynamics include p dim. and sempre.

(Curtain rises.)

Fifth system of musical notation, featuring a treble and bass clef. The music consists of six measures. The right hand plays chords, and the left hand plays a rhythmic accompaniment. Dynamics include pp and rit.. Pedal markings are present: "Ped." under the fifth measure and an asterisk "*" under the sixth measure.

At the rise of curtain, ISABELLA discovered. Scena e Bolero.

- trate, with bliss pen - - e - trate,

The first system of music features a vocal line in a treble clef with a key signature of two flats and a common time signature. The lyrics are "- trate, with bliss pen - - e - trate,". Below the vocal line is a piano accompaniment consisting of two staves: a right-hand staff with chords and a left-hand staff with a rhythmic bass line.

with bliss pen - - e - trate,

The second system continues the vocal line with the lyrics "with bliss pen - - e - trate,". The piano accompaniment remains consistent with the first system.

with bliss..... pen - - -

The third system shows the vocal line with a long note on "bliss" followed by a dotted line and the lyrics "pen - - -". The piano accompaniment continues.

- - - e - trate.

The fourth system concludes the vocal line with the lyrics "- - - e - trate." and ends with a double bar line. The piano accompaniment also concludes with a double bar line.

ISA. But here comes some one, the Doctor and Inez. I must away! Oh! where can my handsome Cavalier have gone?
 Doc. Oh, Inez, why did you throw him out?
 INEZ. Oh, Doctor, why did you throw him out?
 Doc. We are all thrown out through it. Poor young man, he must be very wet. (they go up to window and look out.)

- INEZ. Oh, Senor, we pray that you will remain with us.
DOCT. Yes, and accept our excuses.
CAR. What does this sudden change mean?
INEZ. Why that severe look?
CAR. (Simpering.) Excuse me, it was only a smile.
DOCT. (forcing him into a chair.) Sit down, sir, I beg.
CAR. (rising.) But, Senor—
INEZ. Oh, don't rise. We really can't allow you to stand. (Pushes him into a chair.)
DOCT. (eagerly.) What refreshments will you take? Some cake?

INEZ. His carriage? DOCT. My life blood?
CAR. (terrified.) What does this all mean? (Looks with a silly air about the room.)
DOCT. (aside to INEZ.) It is Carlos!
INEZ. (to DOCT.) I was afraid it was a police spy! Oh, I am so happy.
DOCT. (to INEZ.) So am I. But he spoke of the balcony I am not yet certain of him. Look how he stares! I will pump him. (Aloud.) Well, my young friend. You have appeared in quite an unexpected manner.
CAR. Yes, sir, the beautiful stars of eve—
DOCT. Yes. I believe you said so before. Ha, ha! (laughs unceasingly.) I believe you said—ha, ha!—that you were on the water under the balcony—
CAR. Oh, yes, sir! The flowing stream meandered on its peaceful way. The tender flowers had sunk to rest, and—DOCT. Grace, for the love of the saints! Tell us what you saw.
CAR. (silly.) Saw?
INEZ. When the Doctor says saw, he means, in fact—saw!
CAR. (smiling politely.) Ah, now I understand! The vision of brightness stepped on the balcony— INEZ. That was I!
CAR. I have seen nothing else, on my honor. If anything transpired there that I ought not to have seen—
DOCT. But there didn't. (Aside.) I still suspect him! (Aloud.) What refreshment will you take, Senor? Take some wine.
CAR. Oh, sir! (Simpering.) Anything. No, sir! Nothing! I— (Effeminately.) never drink. INEZ. What! Not water?
CAR. No. That is, sometimes. I live upon the tender dew that Love distills from the rose leaves. Love is my food, love is my drink.
DOCT. Of course. Inez, get him a carafe of love.
CAR. (aside.) How strangely he acts! Who can he be? He seemed to know my father's name.
DOCT. You really must take some wine with me.
CAR. Well, if I must—let it be water. Oh, I love water! Water! Sparkling water! Oh, divine liquor! One looks at water—sails on water—swims in water—
INEZ. Yes, and washes in water!
CAR. Yes. Of course—that is—sometimes. (confused.)
DOCT. Inez, get me that flagon of wine in the closet. Be careful, and bring the right one. And, Inez, glasses. (INEZ gets glasses from closet, fills one from flagon, and offers it to CARLOS on tray.)
CAR. Thank you. (tastes it.) Bah! (distastefully.)
DOCT. What is the matter? [this?
CAR. Nothing. (with politeness and stupidity.) What do you call
DOCT. Lachryma Christi.
CAR. Yes. It is fine—splendid. Thank you. (drinks and is disgusted, but tries to smile to DOCTOR with politeness.)
DOCT. Inez, bring me a glassful also.
INEZ. Yes, Senor. (gives him wine.)
DOCT. (about to drink.) Carambo! What is this? INEZ. Wine, sir.
DOCT. Show me the bottle. (CARLOS yawns and is in pain.)
INEZ. There, Senor! (shows bottle.)
DOCT. The devil! Have you given him this? It is my medicine. I made it too strong, and it's poison.
CAR. I wonder how you can like such bitter wine. It isn't—very—nice. I feel very sleepy. What—funny—wine! (falls in armchair.)
DOCT. Wretched girl, you have done another murder!
INEZ. After all, sir, it is only medicine.
DOCT. Yes, but I intended it for my patients, not for my friends.
CAR. Yes. (yawns.) My father!—kind man!—funny wine.
DOCT. (with sublime composure.) He is dying. We are again accomplices.
CAR. Oh, dear! (sleeps.)
INEZ. Gone? DOCT. Dead! INEZ. Very dead?
DOCT. Fortissimo dead. It would have killed an elephant or an alderman.
INEZ. Oh, heavens! Two murders in a night! What is to be done?
DOCT. We must cut the body up, and take it away piecemeal.
INEZ. Let's fling it into the water.
DOCT. No, wretched girl. It would poison all the fish. We have crimes enough on our heads. Inez!
- INEZ. Yes! Senor Doctor. DOCT. You are a murderess!
INEZ. Yes, Doctor. So are you. DOCT. Inez!
INEZ. Yes, Doctor. (DOCTOR locks doors.)
DOCT. We are both murderers! INEZ. Yes, Senor Doctor.
DOCT. Inez! INEZ. Yes, Doctor.
DOCT. We shall be hung if we are discovered. I have always been a kind master to you. Since you have the crimes on your mind, you might as well take the blame of both. Be hung without me, and merit my eternal gratitude!
INEZ. Doctor, I was about to ask you to do the same thing for me.
DOCT. Oh, dear! I feel very cold.
INEZ. How must he feel! Oh, St. Peter, have mercy on us! Let us hide the body for the present. Where shall we conceal it?
DOCT. I don't know. The deuce! What do dead bodies mean by trespassing on my house in this way? Here, put it in this sofa-bed. (opens sofa.) INEZ. Yes. Be quick. Help me.
DOCT. I don't like to touch him—I mean it!—Do you put it in alone.
INEZ. I can't. I won't. Oh, dear! I'm getting faint.
LUC. (knocks at door.) Doctor!
DOCT. Oh, mercy! INEZ. We are lost!
LUC. (outside.) My dear, some one wants to see you. He has been knocking at the door for some time. (loud knock.)
INEZ. It is your wife. Should she see the body!—
DOCT. (gloumily.) She must perish too. LUC. (outside.) I think it is Senor Balthazar. INEZ. His—I mean it's Father.
DOCT. Father! Oh, he must die also. What brings him here?
LUC. (outside.) Open the door! DOCT. Yes! Quick, Inez. (they place Carlos' body in the sofa, and close the lid.)
INEZ. Oh, mercy on us! We are lost. (opens door, and admits LUCREZIA, with candle.)
DOCT. I'm coming. (unlocks door, and admits SENOR BALTHAZAR.)
[ISABELLA enters.]
BALTHAZAR (to DOCT.) Ah, my old friend! Delighted to see you. Give us your hand. (shakes DOCTOR'S hand.) Why, how cold your hand is! DOCT. Yes! I've got a cold.
BAL. Ah! I thought I'd take you by surprise.
DOCT. I'm cursed if you haven't. Welcome, my friend! How—how are all your family? BAL. Happily they are all well. (sits on sofa.) DOCT. Oh, murder! (aside.) He little knows what the padding of that sofa is made of. BAL. My son hasn't been home for some two or three days. But that is nothing.
DOCT. Of course not. I—I—wouldn't feel troubled if he didn't come home for two or three more, if I were you. He is all right.
BAL. Of course. It doesn't trouble me at all. I have just arrived in Alcantara from home. I came down to see you in order to settle about the marriage of which we have spoken so often.
DOCT. Yes, of course. ISA. (aside.) I won't wed his son, I'm determined.
BAL. I expect my son here in the morning. I left word to that effect for him, at the hotel, where I knew he has been staying.
DOCT. (aside.) Inez! INEZ. (aside.) Doctor!
BAL. I suppose I can have a bed here for the night. Eh, old friend? DOCT. Oh, yes. Of course. LUC. Inez, have a bed aired for Senor Balthazar.
INEZ. There is not a bed ready in the house.
LUC. True! I had forgot. Well, he can manage to sleep in this room for the night. We will make it all right to-morrow.
DOCT. (aside.) In this room! BAL. Oh, yes! Anywhere will do for me. Don't let me give you any trouble.
LUC. The Senor must be fatigued. Inez, some wine!
DOCT. No. No wine, Inez. BAL. Why not?
DOCT. The—fact—is—I have drunk it all. Ha, ha!
BAL. Ha, ha! Well a little morsel of supper.
LUC. How provoking, to think that of all nights in the year, we should have an empty larder to-night!
BAL. Well, well! Never mind. I know it is late. It doesn't matter. I'll take up my bed on this sofa, and wait till the morning.
INEZ. (with horror.) Eh? DOCT. (aside.) On the top of his own son!
BAL. What the deuce ails them all? They look as if they were going to an auto-da-fe.
LUC. (aside.) I wonder where that young man can be?
DOCT. No, no, Senor! Not on that sofa! Really!
BAL. Nonsense! No ceremony! How strangely you all act!
INEZ. (aside to DOCT.) Oh, think of his making an unhappy sandwich of his own son!
DOCT. (aside, tragically.) It is Providence—Fatality!
LUC. Well, then, Senor, apologizing for our apparent neglect, we bid you good night. In the morning, I hope we shall be able to atone for it.
DOCT. (to INEZ.) When he sleeps, we must come here with a pair of shears and cut the body from under him.
INEZ. (aside.) Should he wake— DOCT. (aside.) He dies!
ISA. (aside.) Oh, why did he come at such an unhappy time? I hate him, as I hate his son whom I have never seen!
BAL. Well, friend, I'll not detain you any longer. Good-night.

GOOD NIGHT, SENOR BALTHAZAR.

Moderato.

Piano introduction in B-flat major, 2/4 time. The piece begins with a piano (p) dynamic. The melody is in the right hand, and the bass line is in the left hand. The introduction concludes with a rit. tr (ritardando and trill) marking.

LUC. (With candle in hand.)

Vocal entry of Lucifer. The vocal line is in B-flat major, 2/4 time. The lyrics are: "Ah! Se-nor Bal-tha-zar! Ah! Se-nor Bal-tha-zar! Pleasant dreams and slumbers". The piano accompaniment is in the left hand, starting with a piano (p) dynamic.

Continuation of the vocal line. The lyrics are: "bright Be your hap-py lot to-night; Of gloomy nightmares have no fear, Ghosts nor". The piano accompaniment features dynamic markings of f (forte) and p (piano).

Conclusion of the vocal line. The lyrics are: "de-mons lurk not here, They will not your slum-bers mar! Good night, Se-nor Bal-tha-". The piano accompaniment continues with a piano (p) dynamic.

BAL. How strangely every body seems to act in this house! What can be the matter? How gloomy every thing is! I don't much fancy this sofa. It's very small! Two would find it rather limited. (A sigh from sofa heard.) What is that?—Pshaw!—Nothing. Their miserable good night has given me the horrors, I believe. (Blows out light, and lies down.) This house has a very fatal and ghosly air. "Good night!" It sounded very much like "Go to devil!" I must observe them in the morning. (Takes off his peruke and puts it on wig block on table.) "May no ghosts ye... mar..." (Singing.) Ghosts, gibbets, bats, murders, moonbeams, moans, screams of agony, and demons! A pretty supper to go to bed on! (Sings to wig block.) "Ah! Señor Balthazar!" (Walking to and fro.) Can they have any designs on me? They certainly behaved very mysteriously. (Yawns.) Pshaw! What a fool I am! I'm very sleepy. (Sits on sofa.) I will sleep with one eye open, to be on my guard. (The wind moans outside.) Dear me, I feel very gloomy. (Sings to wig block.)
